Registration of students on National Academic Depository

National Academic Depository (NAD), facilitated by MHRD, is a repository of academic awards/certificates issued by Academic Institutions (AI) in an electronic form with the purpose that students can download their degree certificates as and when needed. The University has entered into the service level agreement with the NAD through NDML (NSDL Database Management Limited) to provide services to students as well as others concerned. In this connection, all students of the University are required to register on the NAD portal before their academic details (awards, certificates, degrees, etc) can be uploaded on NAD.

The students can register on the NAD portal by visiting the link <https://nad.ndml.in/NAD/newStudentRegistrationScreen.html>. Students can also register at the IT/Admission Section of their respective Colleges. Once the student is registered successfully, he/she shall be provided with NAD-ID, which should be communicated to the IT Section for future reference.

In case of any query or information students are advised to contact IT Section of the University.

Note: No student without NAD registration shall be allowed to sit in his/her next Examination.
